MCQ Trend (per attempt, attempts 1 through 29)

exam-12 (95.4%) is a clean first-sitting A+ that lifts Mathematics to 94.5% (491.5/520 over 8 attempts), edging back past Physics (94.5%, 430.0/455) which had taken the lead only two days ago. The two are now separated by little more than a hundredth of a percent — effectively tied at the top, with Math just ahead. Math's MCQ record climbs to 95/96 (99.0%).

One Habit, Three Marks

Every mark Seemab lost on this paper came from the same source: correct computation with the final naming or concluding line left unwritten — “Additive Identity” shortened to “additive property”, the cube factored but not labelled a binomial, and the two midsegment lengths found but the DE∥BC relationship not stated. Not one arithmetic slip in the whole paper. This is the same missing-conclusion pattern seen on the exam-11 papers, and it is the single highest-value habit to fix: her mathematics is already at A+ level.
