

TARJUMA-TUL-QURAN EXAM-03 : DETAILED MARKING REPORT

Surah An-Naml and Surah Al-Hajj · the Queen of Saba, the valley of the ants, Hajj and qurbani
Seemab · Class 9 · Attempt Date: 2026-09-29 · Paper: 38 marks, 1h45m

Final Score: 35.5 / 38 · 93.4% · Grade A

Marking notes. Five pages, all sections present, sequence continuous, nothing missing, no MCQ left blank. Two markers worked this script independently, the second without sight of the first, and reached the identical total and the identical mark on every question. Every MCQ answer and every long answer was re-derived from her own textbook before our key was consulted, and that check found four errors in our own key, all of which were resolved in her favour and are listed at the end.

THE POINT OF THIS PAPER, AND WHAT IT FOUND

Three days ago her Islamiyat paper went from 21/38 to 36.5/38 on the same material. Two things changed: she began writing references, and she began writing long answers as numbered points with names and specifics attached instead of bare headings. This Quran paper was set to find out whether that was a one-subject fix or a real change in how she works.

The answer is split, and it is worth knowing precisely.

Habit	Transferred?	Evidence on this script
Long answers as numbered points with specifics	YES, fully	Q.3 is a numbered narrative in correct order carrying every name and detail. 8/8.
Writing the reference	NO	One surah named in the whole script, zero ayah numbers, no Arabic ayah anywhere. She never names سورۃ النمل even though two questions are entirely An-Naml.
Answering the whole question	PARTLY	Q.4 asked for Hajj and qurbani. She wrote six teachings, every one about qurbani.

What that tells us. The Islamiyat note drilled five specific hadith numbers and she produced six. Nothing had drilled Quranic citation, so she wrote almost none. The habit is question-shaped, not general. It is not that she forgets to cite; it is that she cites what she has been drilled to cite. That is a fixable, and quite encouraging, finding.

SECTION A : Multiple Choice (10 / 10)

Her letters: ب ج الف د ج ب د. That is the key exactly, and all ten were verified against her own book before the key was opened. Nothing blank. The alignment was tested at five offsets and only offset zero produces any match at all, so there is no reading ambiguity.

Items (iv) and (v) were a deliberate trap and she did not fall into it. The Ifreet of the jinn offered the throne first and was outdone by the one who had knowledge of the Book, who brought it in the blink of an eye. A student reading carelessly swaps them. She had both the right way round, and wrote them correctly again in Q.3.

SECTION B : Short Questions (11.5 / 12)

Q.2(i) valley of the ants and the dua 4/4. The ant's warning, the smile, and all three clauses of the dua: gratitude for the favour on herself and her parents, righteous deeds that please Him, and entry among the righteous servants. Her own words:

اے میرے رب! مجھے توفیق دے کہ میں تیری ان نعمتوں کا شکر ادا کروں جو تو نے مجھے اور میرے والدین کو عطا فرمائی ہیں، اور ایسے نیک اعمال کروں جن سے تو راضی ہو، اور اپنی رحمت سے مجھے اپنے نیک بندوں میں شامل فرما۔

Q.2(ii) the consultation 3.5/4. The courtiers' reply is complete and accurate, that they are strong and warlike but the decision is hers. What is thin is her own side of it: she has that the Queen read the letter out and took counsel, but not the line that she decides nothing until they are present.

Q.2(iii) four qurbani teachings 4/4. Four valid teachings, all traceable to the book, using its own terms مانگنے والے and قناعت کرنے والے. The question asked for four and set none as compulsory, so four valid ones is full marks.

SECTION C : Long Questions (14 / 16)

Q.3 the Queen of Saba 8/8, and it is the best long answer she has written in any subject. Nineteen numbered points, in correct order, carrying the specifics rather than narrating loosely: the hoopoe missing at inspection, the report naming Saba, the woman who rules them, the great throne, worship of the sun, the letter sent to verify, that it opened with the name of Allah, its contents that they should not be arrogant and should come in submission, the consultation and the chiefs' reply, the gift and Sulaiman's refusal with his reason, the powerful jinn's offer, the one who had knowledge of the Book bringing it before the blink of an eye, the throne disguised as a test, her reply گویا یہی ہے, the glass floor she took for water, and her final declaration that she submits with Sulaiman to the Lord of the worlds. She then added a closing moral that was not asked for. Only two things from the model answer are missing: the threat against the hoopoe, and Sulaiman's words about gratitude. Against nineteen points made, that is nothing. The marking allows any eight of ten and she has comfortably more.

Q.4 Hajj and qurbani 6/8. Everything she writes is correct and well organised, and she uses the book's own terms. But the question said Hajj and qurbani and she wrote only about qurbani. Her six numbered teachings are all qurbani: it is worship, its real purpose is taqwa, give thanks for the blessings, seek Allah's pleasure and obedience, look after the needy and the one who asks, eat some yourself and feed others.

Not one Hajj rite appears anywhere: not Ibrahim being shown the place of the House, not وَأَذِّنْ فِي النَّاسِ بِالْحَجِّ, not the tawaf, not the Ancient House, not fulfilling vows, not avoiding idols and false speech. MCQ (ix) had handed her Ibrahim twenty minutes earlier and it did not carry over. Half a mark also goes because the central ayah, that neither the flesh nor the blood reaches Allah but your taqwa does, appears only as her own paraphrase and never as the text.

WHAT TO DO NEXT, TWO THINGS ONLY

1. Tag the surah, every time. Writing سورۃ النمل at the head of an An-Naml answer and سورۃ الحج at the head of an Al-Hajj one costs nothing and is worth a mark or more. She proved on the Islamiyat paper that she can hold references when she has drilled them; this simply has not been drilled yet, and that is our omission, not hers.

2. Underline both halves of a two-part question. "Hajj and qurbani" is two things. Circle the "and". She lost 1.5 marks on a passage she plainly knows, because she answered one half thoroughly instead of both halves adequately.

DEFECTS IN OUR OWN PAPER AND KEY, ALL RESOLVED IN HER FAVOUR

Where	What was wrong
Paper, MCQ (vii)	Our option did not quote her book, and the error was ours. We wrote the ant as saying اپنے گھروں میں when her book p91 reads اپنے بلوں میں داخل ہو جاؤ . The two markers disagreed, so the page was read at 300 dpi to settle it. She was not misled, but she then used our wording in her own answer, so the paper taught her a phrase her book does not use.
Key, Q.3	The key required the word عفريت , which appears only in the Arabic. Her book's Urdu says قوی ہیکل جن . She wrote ایک طاقتور جن , following her textbook. No mark withheld.
Key, Q.2(iii)	Said "any four, one each" and then contradicted itself by treating one teaching as compulsory. The question named none. Full marks.
Key, Q.2(ii)	Priced content the question never asked for. Marked on the question as asked: 3.5 rather than the 2.5 a literal reading gives.
Key, Q.4	"Any eight of ten" would let a student score full marks on qurbani alone, which is the opposite of what the stem asks. Marked on the question, not the key's arithmetic.
