WHAT HAPPENED

Seemab's first Islamiat paper landed at 30/46 (65.2%), well below her usual 90%+ norm in Maths, Physics, Chemistry and Biology, but this is genuinely new ground: her first graded exposure to Urdu-medium recall of names, dates, distances and hadith counts across six baabs. The written sections carried the paper: 7/8 on the Section C essay on the compilation of the Quran, and a clean 4/4 on the Umm Sulaim question. Section A MCQs are where the score fell away, at 17/30 (56.7%), concentrated in two tight clusters rather than spread evenly across the paper.

Strongest work: Compilation of the Quran (Q.3, 7/8)

All three required eras (the Prophet's ﷺ time, Hazrat Abu Bakr's, and Hazrat Usman's) are present, in the right order, with the right names: Hazrat Zaid bin Thabit heading the writing of revelation, the copy passing from Abu Bakr to Umar to Hafsa, and Usman's committee unifying everyone on one qira'at. The only miss is the opening citation of Surah al-Hijr, ayah 9, which the answer needed as its introduction.

Q.2(ii): Hazrat Umm Sulaim's services, 4/4

Named all four required points: her participation, the Prophet ﷺ specifically including her among the Ansari women, giving water to fighters, dressing the wounded, and three separate battles (Uhud, Khaybar, Hunain). Confirms she answered the corrected Version B paper, not the withdrawn Version A.

Where the marks went: the Bab 3 Seerat cluster

Eight of the eleven MCQs from Q.10 to Q.20 were wrong: the distance to Wadi Hunain, the tribes settled there, who rallied the scattered fighters, why Kaab bin Malik's repentance was accepted, the year of Hajjat-ul-Wida, and where Hazrat Ali's status was declared. These are all specific facts (numbers, place names, person names) from the Fatah Makkah / Ghazwa Hunain / Tabuk / Hajjat-ul-Wida run of Bab 3, a dense, name-and-number-heavy section that is the clear priority for revision.

Two confusable pairs, both missed

Q.23 asked for the definition of Hasad (wishing someone's blessing taken away); she chose Rashk (wishing a similar blessing without wanting theirs to end); the two are commonly confused and the distinction is explicitly taught. Q.25 swapped Hazrat Shifa (the literate physician, even before Islam) with Hazrat Umm Atiya (who dressed wounds and cooked for the army); the answer key's own notes flag this exact pair as easy to mix up.

Q.2(i): one outcome instead of two

Asked for any two outcomes of the Battle of Hunain, she wrote one point (that victory comes from Allah's help and tawakkul, not numbers) and elaborated it at length instead of adding a second, distinct outcome. Scored 2/4.

Added 2026-09-14: second-guessing a correct first answer

On Q.20 and Q.25 she originally wrote the correct letter (D on both), crossed it out, and switched to a wrong final answer (C on Q.20, B on Q.25). This is a distinct pattern from the Seerat cluster and the confusable pairs above: the right answer was on the page and she talked herself out of it. By contrast, Q.13, Q.21 and Q.24 also have a crossed-out first attempt, but in each of those the final answer she settled on is correct, so the habit of double-checking itself is not the problem. Q.28's final letter is drawn ambiguously (closer to a "P" than a clean D); it does not change the mark, since the correct answer is B and the letter is wrong under any reading of that shape.

MARKS LOST (16 of 46)

Where	Marks	What happened
Q.10–20 (8 MCQs)	8	Bab 3 Seerat cluster: distances, tribe names, person names, years all wrong (see report.pdf for each one)
Q.23	1	Hasad vs Rashk confusable pair
Q.25	1	Hazrat Shifa vs Hazrat Umm Atiya confusable pair
Q.26, Q.27, Q.28	3	Battle count, mother's name, and hadith wording all wrong (Bab 6/7 Sahabiyat + hadith cluster)
Q.2(i)	2	Only one of the two required outcomes of Ghazwa Hunain given
Q.3	1	Missing opening citation of Surah al-Hijr, ayah 9

POSITION IN THE SUBJECT

This is Seemab's first Islamiyat result, so it establishes the baseline rather than extending a trend: there is no prior Islamiyat attempt to compare against. At 65.2%, it sits well below her cross-subject average (low-to-mid 90s in Maths, Physics, Chemistry and Biology), which is expected for a first outing in a brand-new, fact-dense, Urdu-medium subject rather than a cause for concern. The written sections (Q.2(ii) and Q.3) already show she can structure a full answer correctly when she knows the material; the MCQ cluster around Bab 3 Seerat facts is the single highest-leverage area for her next Islamiyat revision session.
